TEACHING

University of Massachusetts

Frank J. Manning Certificate in Gerontology Program - Teaching Assistant

1. Course Title: Elder Action Research (GERCTR 325) - 3 credits (2004)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 2 hours per week; 1 lecture (16 week course)
Description: This in-person undergraduate certificate course introduced concept of participatory action research.
2. Course Title: Social and Economic Implications of Aging (GERCTR 220) - 3 credits (2004)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 2 hours per week; 1 lecture (16 week course)
Description: This in-person undergraduate certificate course introduced students to sociological and financial factors impacting the daily lives of older adults.

Boston University

Post-Professional Masters in Occupational Therapy Program - Online Course Facilitator

3. Course Title: Health Promotion and Wellness (SAROT 610) – 3 credits (2005)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 2 hours per week; 1 lecture (16 week course)
Description: This on-line graduate course focuses on developing a health promotion program grounded in theory. After an introduction to the field of public health and the role of occupational therapy in the area of health promotion and wellness, the course guides the student in the development of a program related to a health issue in his or her practice setting. The student will be introduced to frameworks and theories from public health and other disciplines and will then apply these as he or she develops a health promotion program.

New England Institute of Technology

Occupational Therapy Assistant Program – Adjunct Instructor

4. Course Title: Occupational Therapy in Geriatric Populations (OTA 250) – 3 credits (2007 – 2009)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 2.5 hours per week; 1 lecture (10 week course)
Description: This in-person course is designed to provide students with an understanding of the unique needs of the older adult. Students will apply principles of physical rehabilitation and psychosocial practice in an effort to gain an understanding of occupational therapy with geriatric clients. Students will learn therapeutic interventions aimed at both prevention of dysfunction and restoration of health in working with elders. They will demonstrate an understanding of occupational role function in later life. Students will study treatment interventions, adaptive techniques, and environmental technologies utilized to remediate dysfunction and maximize independence in elders. They will discuss cultural issues and professional ethics as they relate to this population.
5. Course Title: Development of Human Occupation Across the Lifespan (OTA 122) – 4 credits (2008)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 3.5 hours per week; 2 lecture (10 week course)
Description: Using the Model of Human Occupation as a framework, the student will explore normal human development, physically, socially, behaviorally, and cognitively in relationship to environment and culture. Occupational roles throughout the lifespan will be discussed

6. Course Title: Principles of Therapeutic Intervention for Adults (OTA 243)- 3 credits (2008)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 4.5 hours per week; 2 lab sessions (10 week course)
Description: This course is the lab for OTA 240. Students participate in assessment, treatment planning and implementation of occupational therapy for adults. Students plan, grade and perform enabling, adjunctive and purposeful activities to facilitate performance components and function of the adult client in all performance areas. Adaptation to person, task and environment will be incorporated into course content.
7. Course Title: Practice Issues of the Occupational Therapy Assistant (OTA 255) – 2 credits (2008)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 14 hours per week; 1 lecture (3 week course)
Description: This course provides case-based learning to focus the student on treatment planning and clinical reasoning in a variety of practice environments. All material used in previous classes will be used to successfully complete this course. The emphasis is on collaborative teamwork and self-directed learning.
Course content will focus on management issues, practical roles, and responsibilities of the entry-level occupational therapy assistant. Clinical and administrative documentation and legal and ethical issues will be addressed. The objective of the course is to transition the student from the classroom to the practice environment and helps prepare the student for the national certification examination.

Chan Division of Occupational Science and Occupational Therapy

Entry-level Masters Degree Program --- Course Instructor

8. Course Title: Quantitative Research for Evidence-Based Practice (OT 518) – 4 credits (2012 – 2014; 2017)
Year(s), number of students: 45-65 per section of the course
Contact hours; number of lecture: 3 hours per week; 1 lectures (16 week course)
Description: Designed to facilitate students' abilities to use research as part of their clinical decision-making process, including gathering evidence from a variety of sources, critically evaluating research literature, and integrating research in clinical decision-making.

Occupational Science PhD Program --- Invited Lecturer

9. Course Title: Foundations of Occupational Science (OT 640) (2013, 2014, 2018)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 3 hours; 1 lecture/term (Fall terms)
Description: US healthcare and the need for rehabilitation health services research (2013, 2018); Health services & policy (2014)

Post-professional Occupational Therapy Clinical Doctorate Program --- Invited Lecturer

10. Course Title: Current Issues in Occupational Science and Occupational Therapy (OT 620) (2015 – 2016)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 3 hours; 1 lecture/term (Fall terms)
Description: Engaging in clinical quality improvement to facilitate best practice: Understanding the theoretical perspective on translation and implementation (2015); Driving quality improvement in clinical practice: Understanding the theoretical perspective on translation and implementation (2016)

Entry-level and Post-Professional Masters Degree Program --- Invited Lecturer

11. Course Title: Leadership Capstone (OT 580) (2013 – 2015)
Contact hours; number of lectures: 2 hours; 1 lecture/term (Spring terms)

- Description: What is quality? (2013); Measuring occupational therapy in the era of health care reform: Providing quality care to all clients (2014); Healthcare policy: Implications for occupational therapy (2015)
12. Course Title: Current Issues in Practice Adulthood & Aging (OT 508) (2013)
